SRA 2025/6 Business Plan published [\[https://consultations.sra.org.uk/news/news/driving-trust-expect-sra-2026/\]](https://consultations.sra.org.uk/news/news/driving-trust-expect-sra-2026/)

Our Business Plan laying out our priorities for the next 12 months has now been published, outlining how we will drive trust and confidence in a rapidly changing legal market. Our four strategic priorities remain unchanged, but we have moved quickly to develop new, significant programmes of work. These include work to protect client money and the interests of clients in high-volume claims cases.

One-stop shop for ethics guidance and support [\[https://consultations.sra.org.uk/home/hot-topics/upholding-professional-ethics/\]](https://consultations.sra.org.uk/home/hot-topics/upholding-professional-ethics/)

Recent high-profile examples of poor ethical conduct could damage trust and confidence in the profession. Conduct falling short of our ethical standards can range from unintentional behaviour with limited consequences through to deliberate acts causing serious consumer detriment. We have a range of guidance brought together in one place to help you navigate the ethics maze.

Government announces future changes to AML regulation

[<https://consultations.sra.org.uk/news/news/sra-update-145-aml-supervision-change/>]

The Government has announced that the Financial Conduct Authority will become the single professional services supervisor for anti-money laundering and counter-terrorism financing. A consultation on how this will work is now open. We will continue our activities to supervise in this area ahead of any transition to a new approach.

Have your say on our high-volume claims work [<https://consultations.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/high-volume-claims-discussion-paper-2025/>]

Should the term 'no win, no fee' be banned? Should we have different authorisation processes for firms working in high volume claims? These are the types of questions we ask in a discussion paper inviting views on the way the market for high-volume claims is operating. The discussion paper is open for feedback until 14 November.

Legal Services Board publishes report into SSB investigation [<https://consultations.sra.org.uk/news/news/press/lb-ssb-review-response/>]

The Legal Services Board commissioned an independent review of our handling of SSB Law Group Ltd (SSB). This involved assessing reports made about SSB from Jan 2019 – March 2024 and how we responded. We have apologised to those clients affected and accepted the recommendations of the review to address the failures identified.

Welcome to the latest issue of Compliance News. This month:

- Find out the main reasons for AML breaches in our latest annual report
- Read our thematic review into source of funds and wealth compliance and access new resources
- Missed it? Then don't miss out, you can watch our virtual Compliance Officers Conference on demand
- Stay up to date on our sanctions checks and the government's new sanctions general licence

Missed it? Then don't miss out on our virtual Compliance Officers Conference on demand

[<https://consultations.sra.org.uk/news/events/on-demand-events/compliance-conference-2025/>]

Our virtual Compliance Officers Conference took place last week following a record-breaking attendance at our event in Birmingham in October. Thank you to everyone who came on the day or who has watched our online sessions. For those of you who missed out, fear not, because you can now catch-up via our on-demand facility, where you can learn about common Accounts Rules enquiries, checking source of funds for AML purposes and how to record your continuing competence.

Read our thematic review into source of funds and wealth compliance and access new resources [<https://consultations.sra.org.uk/sra/research-publications/thematic-review-source-funds-wealth-compliance/>]

We have produced additional resources for firms following the publication of the thematic review into source of funds and source of wealth. The review looked at three years of data and we spoke to firms about compliance challenges they faced. It includes guidance, checklists, common questions and information for clients.

Stay up to date on our sanctions checks and the government's new sanctions general licence [\[https://consultations.sra.org.uk/news/news/sra-update-145-sanctions-licence/\]](https://consultations.sra.org.uk/news/news/sra-update-145-sanctions-licence/)

The Office of Financial Sanctions Implementation (OFSI) has issued a new General Licence, which took effect on 28 October 2025. This replaces several earlier legal-services licences. Firms should update internal policies, client onboarding procedures and billing processes to align with the new requirements.

Check you know rules about marketing to clients [\[https://consultations.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/marketing-public/\]](https://consultations.sra.org.uk/solicitors/guidance/marketing-public/)

Awaab's Law came into effect from 27 October in England, making sure health and safety hazards in social housing are addressed quickly by landlords. This could result in an increase in housing disrepair claims being brought. If you are likely to advertise for such work, please read our warning notice on marketing your services to the public.

Get clarity on Mazur case and conducting litigation

[<https://consultations.sra.org.uk/home/hot-topics/conducting-litigation/>]

We have published our view that the recent High Court judgment in the Mazur case does not change the position in law. Non-authorised individuals can support litigation, but only an authorised individual, such as a solicitor, should be conducting litigation. We have pulled together resources to help your firm satisfy itself that it is complying with the Legal Services Act.
